

Skills for Growth

Helping employers adapt to change

Scotland's employers are adapting to a new economic environment – including a greater focus on innovation and productivity – where having the right blend of skills in place is essential.

Skills for Growth from Skills Development Scotland (SDS) helps employers from all sectors face these challenges by equipping people and businesses with the skills to seize opportunities and realise their potential.

Find out more and apply
Visit ourskillsforce.co.uk/growth or call 0800 783 6000

Skills for Growth - Helping employers adapt to change

Who's eligible?

Employers in Scotland from any sector with between 5 and 250 employees

What does it cost?

Skills for Growth is a fully-funded service meaning there is no cost to employers

What are the benefits?

Increased performance

Build confidence

Manage change

Support employees

How Skills for Growth works

1

You'll meet your SDS Adviser to discuss your objectives and challenges

2

An independent specialist will assess your organisation, talk to your staff and understand their skills

3

We'll provide you with a bespoke detailed People Action Plan with recommendations on how you can achieve your growth ambitions

4

You prioritise what's most important for your business

5

We'll support you to achieve your people goals

How Skills for Growth has helped:

Operations Director of engineering firm Mage Control Systems, Janet Menzies:

"It's had a huge impact on what the company does, particularly in terms of our approach to recruitment.

"Thanks to the support from SDS, my knowledge has increased, our networks are greater, and we know where to go for advice."

Chief Executive at charity Age Scotland, Brian Sloan:

"I thought the process was very inclusive, well-explained and really well conducted. There was good flexibility on offer, so if there were pinch points, or if other issues needed addressed, then the support could be adapted accordingly."

